First Edition Design Publishing. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 244 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.5in.Abigail Samson wants nothing more than to lead a happy, normal life. She wants to be carefree and to daydream about college like all of the other seniors at her high school. Instead, she finds herself facing one of the toughest times in her life. After receiving news of her sisters death in a tragic car accident, Abbey struggles to find a way to cope with the grief and guilt stemming from her loss. At home, she is haunted by the all too fresh memories of her sister, as well as the stress from her mothers constant chastisements about her battle with anorexia. After one week out of school, Abbey attempts to go back to her normal life, convincing herself that she can move past all of her sadness. But an incident in her English class proves beyond a doubt that she is nowhere near ready to move on with her life. Feeling even more defeated, she finds solace in her neighbor and best friend, Tyler, who seems to be the only person in her life who cares about her. He spends every single day with her, and after awhile, Abbey begins to feel like maybe she isnt drowning after all. But an exceptionally heated argument with her mother one night pushes Abbey to run away from her apartment and out into the streets to the point where she gets completely lost. She has no clue where she is, its dark, and the temperature is well below zero. Things only get worse when she stumbles upon a group of dangerous looking guys who trap her in an alley. With nowhere to run and nobody to save her, Abbey is terrified at the thought of...
